No. ADMI-5(11)/63

Dated July 22, 1963

Office Order No. 74

A doubt has arisen whether the fine imposed on an employee can be recovered in cash if the employee is prepared to pay it or this should only be recovered from his wages within 60 days of the act of omission or commission in respect of which it is imposed.

In continuation of office order No. 139 and 130 of 4.8.60 and 12.11.62 respectively, it is notified that as per provisions of Section 8(6) & (7) of the Payment of Wages Act, no fine imposed on any employee is recoverable from him by instalments or after the expiry of 60 days from the day on which the fine was imposed which is to be reckoned from the date of its commission.

It is therefore clarified for the information of all concerned that the proceedings of imposition of fine should preferably be completed in course of a fortnight. The workman should be communicated the decision of the authority concerned and be asked to pay the amount in cash immediately or within a day or two. If the employee fails to pay the amount in cash the fine should be recovered from the wages to be paid to him in the following month. It should, however, be ensured that the date of commission of the offence and the date of recovery should in no circumstances exceed the limit of 60 days and that the fine is to be recovered in one instalment only and there is no relaxation of the rules in this behalf.

It is also impressed that all fines are to be recorded in the prescribed register and the amount of fine is to be credited to the Labour Welfare Fund.

These instructions should be strictly followed by all concerned.
